Dear Ms. Cameron:

Your words of support and encouragement at the Association of the Bar and in your letter of October 27 are very much appreciated. As you know, for too long those in positions of leadership in the Department have ignored the immigration area -- policy, law and budget. Reversing this lack of emphasis and tackling problems long neglected are necessary and challenging, but also quite difficult to accomplish. Knowing that there are those, particularly within INS, who appreciate our efforts is very encouraging.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Giuliani:

It was a distinct pleasure to hear you discuss the Reagan Administration's Proposals for Immigration Reform, at the Association of the Bar of the City of New York not too long ago.

I was most impressed with the initiative and resourcefulness demonstrated by this administration. You are to be congratulated on how quickly you seem to have grasped the immigration problems facing the Service and the Country. I admired the way you responded to the questions put to you.

It is regrettable that no one else from the New York District Office was there that evening. I do hope to have the opportunity to hear you speak again when you address a group in New York. I enjoyed making your acquaintance that evening.

Sincerely,

Nina Rao Cameron
District Counsel
